Theme explanation and definition:

Theme is a very broad idea portrayed or implied in a story. It can be a message of a story or a moral of a story. There can be a main theme in a novel, and there can also be many other “minor” themes that are presented in stories. The theme, or “message”, can be about many things such as life, humanity, or society. Themes are universal ideas presented in stories, and are one of the fundamental concepts of literature. Some examples of themes are:

There are limitless themes that can be gathered from literature, but most novels usually have specific implied themes within their pages.
